Christine Rhoda Kiss

Christine (nee Mangiarotty) died peacefully in her sleep after a courageous battle with lung cancer. Christine was born in Trowbridge, England and immigrated to Montreal where she met her husband Joseph (Joćo)at the Montreal General Hospital. They married in 1967, and had their first born Andor (Andy) in 1970. They moved across the country to Victoria in 1972, setting up house on Redwood Avenue where they lived for 48 years. In 1974, Joanna was born and the family was complete. Christine spent her life volunteering with various organizations, most notably with the RBC Museum for over 20 years.

Christine was a prominent member of the Victoria Medical Wives during the 1980s and enjoyed many service activities with that organization. Christine was an elegant and classy person who lived life to the fullest and appreciated classical music, ballet, travel, cooking. She made the best crispy roast potatoes!) and being a grandmother. Christine is survived by her husband Joe, children Andy (Rachael) and Joanna (Scott); grandchildren, Oskar, Angus and Lola. She will be missed by all those who knew her.
