

Frederick Mattison Carr

September 1, 1929 – February 14, 2012

Frederick Mattison Carr passed away peacefully, sitting in his favourite armchair. Fred was the youngest of three children born to Dr. William Carr and Maude Carr in Victoria, B.C. He was predeceased by his parents, his sister, Elizabeth Chambers, and brother-in-law, David Chambers. He will be very much missed by his brother, John Carr, and many long time close friends.

As a young man Fred attended Glenlyon and Victoria High schools and was first employed in the banking trade in the Victoria area. He also travelled and resided in London, England and central and southern Africa. Eventually Fred returned to his roots in his beloved Victoria where he became the well-known proprietor of several boutique shops, including Tibetan Arts and Crafts and Kashmir, in Market Square. Most recently, he enjoyed attending flea markets, playing bridge, reading extensively and socializing with friends.

Fred bravely and fiercely battled cancer many times in his life and triumphed over the disease for over twenty-five years. He was an active member of the Victoria Laryngectomy Club.

At Fred's request, there will be no formal service. Condolences may be offered below.
